Clearly he thought I'd stand there____ in com-pli-ance. I____ sur-prised him,

May-be he's not____ so clev-er. That was new to me. What did that do to me? Now my meas-ly tongue can cut through ice!

But can it survive in the coldest of bliz-zards?
Should these sharp tongues be kept to the lizards?

What if I pierce someone's heart without knowing my part in their suffering?

A certain tongue comes to mind...

Oliver will be safe from that ex-frat boy.
All 'cause of me, the budding hero of that boy. Well, I guess it's better late than never.
In di go, I want ed to talk to you a bout some thing. What is it?

Standing your ground is ve ry new to you.

You and I both know that is true. How do I put this?
In-di-go, I'm proud, Speech-less in fact, That you stood tall and loud. And I won-der
